HOTELS FOR THE DISCERNING TRAVELER

PHILIPPE KJELLGREN

The Vine Hotel | FUNCHAL | PORTUGAL

Well, it's official: Breaking up is definitely hard to do. One of your best friends was learning that the hard way, and needed your help. It turns out, however, that your friend also needed to be with family... which meant going to stay with them in Portugal... which meant you were expected to follow. A few days later, walking up a curving staircase covered in aubergine carpet, your stomach impossibly pleased after a delicious meal at your hotel's three-Michelin-starred gourmet restaurant, you smile at how well things have worked out. You have moved into this gorgeous place - the Vine Hotel - and your friend is contemplating moving in with you. Apparently time at the family home is only comforting for so long. So you've been spending your time together here instead - lounging by the pool and bar, going to the spa, and exploring the region. This beautiful Portuguese paradise, whose name is a tribute to the magnificent wines of Madeira, has been the perfect remedy for a broken heart.
